Domestic Diplomacy. She was watching at the window,
As I burried down the street,
In the simple brown merino
That I fancy looks so neat,
And her smile I thought pretentious,
It was so exceedingly sweet.

Then she met me at the threshold With a very lovely kiss, That recalled the early stages Of our matrimonial bliss, And I felt at once a tremor—

No! The children were all quiet, and the hearth was very bright

My chair was near the fire And my slippers by its side, My pipe was very handy And my papers open wide,

The dinner was perfection— It was lavish without waste; And exactly to my taste; While the desert was a triumph Of artistic skill in paste.

And when the meal was over, And when the mear was over,
And the inner man at rest,
She drew her chair beside me,
With the baby on her breast,
I felt, and so I told her,
I was one among the blest.

Oh! the smile of tender radiance That illumined all her face, As I clasped her to my bosom In a lover's fond embrace— It was then she softly whispered, Won't you let me have that lace?"
